To review the literature and perform a systematic literature review to provide a clinical update on the efficacy and safety of antiepiligrin c5 domain antibodies (AECA), as well as the commercially available Pemphigus drugs, and to provide a consensus-based treatment recommendations. A systematic literature review of the medical literature was conducted in PubMed. All studies were cross-checked for a full text, with independent research by two independent reviewers. A set of specific Pemphigus drugs was selected based on their mode of action. Two independent reviewers collected data using predefined data extraction forms. Descriptive data were presented using forest plots. The level of evidence was evaluated using Oxford Centre for Evidence-Based Medicine criteria. A total of 2858 articles were identified by the search strategy. Five articles met the inclusion criteria. The reviewed publications revealed a lack of comparative studies, as well as an inconsistency between studies with regard to the results on drug efficacy. Only limited evidence is available on the Pemphigus drugs. AECA appears to be safe, whereas there is limited evidence supporting its efficacy. There is a lack of comparative studies and a lack of evidence of efficacy for all the Pemphigus drugs. AECA is safe, and considering the lack of studies on efficacy, we only suggest it in combination with corticosteroids and an immunosuppressive agent in patients who have failed to respond to other therapeutic options. We need larger comparative studies to better define the role of individualized combination therapies. The use of AECA in association with corticosteroids and an immunosuppressant remains a treatment option to be explored.1990–91 Soviet League season The 1990–91 Soviet League season was the 61st season of the Soviet Championship League, the top level of ice hockey in the Soviet Union. 23 teams participated in the league, and Traktor Chelyabinsk won the championship, earning the right to play the 1991–92 season in the Canada-based Super Series.
